Article 5

In determining and evaluating serious injury or threat of serious injury, in particular the volume of imports and import price and the effect of those on the developments in economic indicators such as production, utilization of capacity, inventories, sales, market share, prices, profits, return of investment capital, cash flow and employment of the domestic producers who produce like or directly competitive products shall be taken into account.

interests of the country, the Committee may make a decision to apply provisional measures. If the provisional measure applied shall ensure the remedy of the serious injury, it shall be applied in the form of making an increase in the customs duties of the product in question in the framework of the related legislation. In case a provisional measure is applied, the required investigations shall continue and be completed and the procedure of consultation with the concerned exporter countries may be continued.

The application forms, that are prepared in the framework of the criteria in Article 9/i, an example of which is given in Annex II, must be filled completely and properly.

The General Directorate, in case it is deemed necessary, can request additional information and documents at any stage of the preliminary examination and the investigation.

Where the application is withdrawn at the preliminary examination stage, the procedures are terminated by the General Directorate.

Article 4

The General Directorate makes the preliminary examination within 1 (one) month where the application stated in Article 3 is made completely and properly or in conditions where it is deemed necessary, it makes a preliminary examination on its own initiative (ex-officio). In exceptional circumstances, this period can be extended for 1 (one) month by the General Directorate.

The results of the preliminary examination are presented to the evaluation of the Committee. In the evaluation of the Committee, basically the following are taken into account:

- The import level and conditions and the import trend and the factors related to the economic and trade conditions of the subject goods.
- The measures which can be taken in the scope of this Regulation, if needed.

Article 5

(i)If the Committee decides not to initiate an investigation, the fact shall be notified in writing by the General Directorate to the applicants.

(iii)The investigation is carried out by the General Directorate and is completed within 9 (nine) months. In exceptional circumstances, this period can be extended for 2 (two) months.

- (ii) In case it is proved that there are special reasons for giving a hearing to the natural and legal persons concerned together with the representatives of the exporter countries who shall be influenced by the conclusion of the investigation, by making a written request within the period stated in the announcement in the Official Gazette, a hearing is given by the General Directorate. Furthermore, the persons and representatives mentioned can request in writing to examine the information and where the request is deemed justified by the General Directorate, they can examine the information which is not considered to be confidential according to the provisions of Article 7.
- (iii) Where it is understood that the required information cannot be obtained by the General Directorate in the anticipated period of time or that the investigation is being obstructed, the investigation is concluded within the framework of the existing data. Article 7

The information received in the scope of this Regulation cannot be used outside of the purpose for which it was requested. The information collected with a confidential nature or the information given that is stated as being confidential, cannot be revealed without the written permission from the party submitting such information and the principle of professional secrecy cannot be infringed.

Information is accepted as being confidential where its disclosure can have an adverse effect upon the supplier or the source of the information.

Requests related to keeping information confidential also indicate why the information is confidential. However, if it appears that a request for confidentiality is not warranted and if the supplier is either unwilling to make the information public or to authorize its disclosure in a generalized or summary form, the information in question may be disregarded in the investigation.

The provisions above do not prevent the use of the information gathered as a reference, to general information and in particular to the reasons on which decisions taken in the scope of this Regulation are based. Along with this, when this information is used as a reference, great care is taken for the legitimate interests of the natural and legal persons and among other things, their business secrets are not divulged.

Article 8

- (i) The Committee convenes at the conclusion of the investigation and the General Directorate informs the Committee of the results of the investigation.
- (ii) If the Committee decides that there is no need for any safeguard measure or surveillance, then the investigation is terminated and the decision for termination along with a summary justification is published in the Official Gazette by the Undersecretariat.

(iii) If the Committee decides to apply safeguard measures or surveillance for imports, after the decision is ratified by the Ministry it is published in the Official Gazette and according to the nature of the decision, the required procedures are started in the framework of the provisions in Parts IV and V.

Article 9

(i) In the examination of the trend of imports and conditions in which they take place and of serious injury or threat of serious injury to domestic producers resulting from such imports in particular the following factors are taken into consideration:

(a) The volume of imports, whether or not there has been a significant increase either in absolute figures of imports or relative according to domestic production or consumption.

(b) Import prices, particularly whether or not there is a significant undercutting of prices compared with prices of the like or directly competitive domestically produced products.

(c) The impact on the domestic producers who produce like or directly competitive products of the development in some certain economic factors such as:

-Production

- Utilization of capacity

-Stocks

-Sales

-Market share

-Prices (depression of prices or prevention of price increases which would normally have occurred)

-Profits

-Return on capital

-Cash flow and

-Employment

(ii) In conditions where a threat of injury is alleged, the General Directorate shall also examine whether or not the alleged subject is suitable for being transformed into an actual injury. On this subject, the factors given below may be taken into consideration:

(a) The rate of increase of exports aimed at Turkey.

(b) Export capacity in the country of origin or export, as it stands or likely to be in the foreseeable future, and the likelihood that capacity will be used to export to Turkey.

PART IV

SURVEILLANCE

Article 10

(i) Where a product is imported that causes threat of injury to the domestic producers producing like or directly competitive products, and the interests of the country also necessitate it, the import of the product in question may be subjected to surveillance by the Committee in the framework of the principles provided for in Article 11.

The purpose of surveillance is to closely monitor the developments that shall be recorded in the imports of a product and it is applied by means of the issuing of a "surveillance document". Where it is deemed necessary by the Committee, besides "prior" surveillance, to ensure the establishment of a relationship between the previous imports and the existing and probable imports of the product in question, "retrospective" surveillance can also be envisaged.

In these conditions, a registration is kept by the Undersecretariat which states that the product in question has been taken under surveillance.

(ii) The surveillance is temporary and unless otherwise decided by the Committee, the prior surveillance shall be repealed automatically at the end of the second 6 (six) month period following the 6 (six) month period in which the measures were introduced.

Article 11

(i) A product subject to surveillance can be imported where the "Surveillance Document" an example of which is shown in Annex III, is presented. The Surveillance Document, without prejudice to the other conditions envisaged in the legislation in force, is given free of charge by the Undersecretariat, for the entire quantity requested and within 5 (five) working days of receipt by the General Directorate of the properly prepared application of the importer.

As long as there is not a different provision provided for in the decision subject to surveillance, the declaration by the importer shall contain only the following:

- (a) Name of the importer, business address and import certificate number.
- (b) Description of goods.
- (c) 8 digit Goods Code.
- (d) Country of origin.
- (e) Exporter country.
- (f) F.o.b./c.i.f. (cost of goods, insurance, freight) value and the quantity in units used in commerce (quantity, tons, metres, litres, etc).
- (g) Proposed date or dates and location or locations (such as port, customs) for imports.

The General Directorate may ask for additional information if it is deemed necessary.

(ii) During actual importation, a finding that the unit price at which the transaction is effected exceeds that indicated on the Surveillance Document by less than 5 per cent shall not preclude the import of the product in question. However, the General Directorate, by taking account of the nature of the products and transactions, may fix a different percentage, which does not normally exceed 10 per cent.

(iii) The Surveillance Document is valid for the period in which the arrangement related to the surveillance remains in force, as long as there is no provision in opposition to it.

(iv) Where it is envisaged in the decision adopted in accordance with Article 10, the origin of products subject to surveillance is documented with a "certificate of origin". The presentation of a certificate of origin shall not affect other provisions concerning production of any such certificate.

PART V
SAFEGUARD MEASURES

Article 12

Where a product is imported in such increased quantities and/or on such conditions as to cause serious injury or threat of serious injury to the domestic producers producing like or directly competitive products, in cases where intervention is required for the interests of the country, as safeguard measures the Committee may:

(a) Limit the period of validity of the Surveillance Document given in the scope of Article 11.

(b) Make the import of the product in question subject to permission by determining certain quantities and/or values where it is required. The product subject to permission can only be imported with an import licence/permission document that shall be issued by the Undersecretariat.

As regards Members of the WTO, the measures referred to in paragraph 1 shall be taken only in case where importation increases in such quantities and conditions as to cause, or threaten to cause, serious injury to the domestic producers.

In determining quantities and/or values for the import of the product in question (for the establishment of a quota), the following are taken into account:

-The traditional trade flows of the product in question by exporter countries.

-The average level of imports over the last three representative years for which import statistics are available unless a different level is required to prevent or remedy serious injury.

-Other matters which are deemed necessary.

Where a quota is allocated among exporter countries, quota allocation may be agreed upon with the countries which have a substantial interest from the export of the product in question.

Where this is not possible, the quota is allocated among the exporter countries in proportion to their share of imports realized in the representative period for the product in question, by taking into consideration the special factors which may have affected or are affecting the trade of the product.

With the condition of taking into consideration the consultations that shall be held under the auspices of the World Trade Organization (WTO) Committee on Safeguards, if the imports made from one or more exporter countries have increased in a disproportionate percentage according to the total increase of imports of the product in the representative period concerned and if it has been the cause of serious injury, a procedure different from the procedure specified above can be determined. The period of this type of safeguard measure, including provisional measures, does not exceed 4 (four) years.

No safeguard measures are applied to a product originating in a developing country Member of the WTO as long as that country's share of the product concerned does not exceed 3 per cent, provided that developing country Members with less than a 3 per cent import share collectively account for not more than 9 per cent of the total imports of the product concerned.

Article 13

The safeguard measures are applied for a period of time that shall be sufficient to prevent or remedy serious injury and to ensure the adjustment of the domestic industry. If the period of the safeguard measures is not extended in the framework of the second paragraph, it does not exceed 4 (four) years, including the provisional safeguard measures.

Where it is necessary to continue the safeguard measures to prevent or remedy serious injury and evidence is determined which shows that the industries concerned are adjusting, the period of the safeguard measures can be extended according to the results of a new investigation to be opened in accordance with the terms of Part III and using the same producers as the initial measures. The total application period of the safeguard measures cannot exceed 10 (ten) years.

Where quotas as a safeguard measure are applied and the duration of the measure exceeds one year, the measure must be progressively liberalized at regular intervals during the period of application to make adjustment easier. Where the duration of a measure exceeds 3 (three) years, then the condition shall be reviewed no later than the mid-term of the period of application of that measure.

No safeguard measure shall be applied again to the import of a product which has been subject to such a measure in the scope of the Regulation, for a period of time equal to half that during which such measure has been previously applied, provided that the period of non-application is at least 2 (two) years.

However, if a minimum of one year has passed since the date of a safeguard measure on the import of a product entering into force and if such a safeguard measure has not been applied against the same product more than twice in the five-year period preceding the date of the measure entering into force, a safeguard measure of 180 (one hundred and eighty) days or less may be reapplied.

Article 14

Where an opinion is reached that it is necessary to have a quantitative and/or value limit as a safeguard measure as the result of the investigations by the Committee, the condition is made known within the shortest time possible to the exporter country/countries concerned and consultations are held in order to reach an agreement within 30 (thirty) days at the latest. The results of consultations are presented to the Committee and following the ratification of the Committee's Decision by the Ministry, it is put into force.

However, in cases where provisional measures are applied or if an agreement is not reached with the exporter countries within 30 (thirty) days as of the date of notification for consultations, and if the distribution is not undertaken by the exporter countries concerned, information is given to the exporter country/countries in question and the distribution is made by the General Directorate.

Article 15

(a) In accordance with Article 12, paragraph (a), if a decision has been made by the Committee to limit the period of validity of the Surveillance Documents, then the new periods of validity,

(b) In accordance with Article 12, paragraph (b), where a decision is made by the Committee to apply quantitative and/or value limits (quotas) measures for imports, in the framework of the provisions of the Regulation on Quotas and Tariff Quotas, then the necessary information, is/are published by the Undersecretariat in the Official Gazette.

Article 16

In accordance with Article 14, where the application of the common solution that shall be obtained as the result of the consultations made is undertaken by the exporter country, the importer can obtain a permit from the Undersecretariat (General Directorate) for the documented quantity and/or value for which agreement has been made with the exporter or the importer can have the permit issued by the competent authorities of the exporter country certified by the Undersecretariat.

PART VI

PROVISIONAL MEASURES

Article 17

Where a product is imported in such increased quantities and/or on such conditions that cause serious injury or cause threat of serious injury to the domestic producers producing like or directly competitive products, in critical circumstances where a delay would cause injury which would be difficult to repair, and where there is obvious evidence that intervention is required for the interests of the country, provisional safeguard measures can be adopted by the Committee. Provisional measures can be in the form of:

(a) Surveillance of imports.

(b) Application of a provisional safeguard measure. If the provisional safeguard measure ensures the prevention or remedy of the injury, it shall be in the form of an increase in the customs tariffs of the product in question in the framework of the related legislation.

The period of the provisional safeguard measures in all cases shall not exceed 200 (two hundred) days.

Where the provisional safeguard measures are applied, the required investigations shall be continued and completed and the pursuance of the negotiation procedure with the exporter countries concerned can be continued. The provisions in this Part do not prevent the adoption of the measures that shall be adopted in the framework of the provisions in Part IV and Part V.

PART VII

OTHER PROVISIONS

Article 18

The Surveillance Document is asked by banks at the stage of preparing the import permit and the customs authority concerned during the actual import stage.

The measures stated in Articles 10 and 12 are valid as of the date the measure enters into force. However, the measures in Articles 10 and 12 cannot be applied to the products of which customs formalities have been completed by the relevant exporter country or entered customs prior to the date the measure enters into force.

Article 19

In accordance with Parts IV and V, during the period when the decisions related to the safeguard measures or surveillance adopted are in force, the General Directorate can summon the Committee to a meeting on its own initiative or upon a request:

- (a) To examine the impacts of the measure.
- (b) To review whether or not the application is still required.
- (c) To make a change in the nature of the measure, or
- (d) To extend the duration of the measure.

The Committee evaluates the effects and results of the measures in force at these meetings and can make a decision to continue, remove or change the application and where it is deemed necessary, to extend the duration of the measure. These decisions that are ratified by the Ministry are published in the Official Gazette together with a summary justification.

Article 20

The General Directorate shall be informed of:

- (b) By the surveillance document holder and companies once every 2 (two) months as of the date of its obtaining and in all cases at the termination of its validity.

Article 21

The work of the Committee for the Evaluation of Surveillance and Safeguard Measures for Imports is carried out according to the principles and procedures mentioned below.

The Committee makes a decision upon the proposal of the General Directorate on the subject of safeguard measures and surveillance.

The Committee upon the invitation of the Chairman, convenes at the date and location stated in the invitation.

The Committee convenes with an absolute majority. Where a majority is not obtained at the first meeting, a majority is not sought at the meeting that shall be held the following day.

The Committee decisions are adopted with a majority vote of those attending the meeting. Where the votes are equal, it is accepted that the side to which the Committee Chairman gives a vote has obtained a majority.

Where it is determined that the Committee members have engaged in the types of relations in Article 245 of the Code of Civil Procedure, with the parties who are the subject of the investigation, they cannot participate in the meetings.

It is mandatory that the representatives of professional organizations who are Committee members should not be a producer, exporter or importer of the like or directly competitive product that is the subject of the investigation and they should not be occupied in any manner with the trade of these products. Otherwise the provision in the paragraph above is applied.

The secretarial services of the Committee are carried out by the General Directorate.
